

THAILAND

If you are looking for a perfect vacation, which means that you want to relax and at the same time you also want to have fun, Thailand is the perfect place for everything. As soon as you get down from the plane, you can feel the tropical heat. It always gives me thrills when it hits me that I have landed far away from home. We landed in Bangkok first. From there, we had to go to Phuket island - one of the best places I have seen in my life so far. Absolutely clean and fresh air surrounds you with the smell of tropical breeze. We stayed in Angsana Laguna Resort, which lies in the Thalang district. It is set along the shores of Phuket's Bang Tao Bay in the island's Northwest, spread across 600 acres. It has a pristine beach with warm white sand and a 300-metre long free form pool around the resort. The best part about it is that you can ease up on the beach alongside two bars with relaxing music, while enjoying the beachy breeze and the sound of the waves. There are endless number of water sports that you get to do with your family. In addition to that, there are boats in the mini lakes inside the resort which take you to even more hidden gems in the resort. The next thing that you want to visit in Phuket is the Big Buddha. It is a world-famous tall Buddha statue that is visible from anywhere in Phuket. The views from there are absolutely breathtaking. The Big Buddha Phuket is a must visit site. Thailand's capital is largely known for its ornate shrines and vibrant street life. Bangkok welcomes more visitors than any other city in the world, which I was told by every tourist guide when we were there, and it didn't take me much time to realise that they all were right. Be it the gleaming temples, the bustling Chinatown, or a longtail boat through the floating markets {MY FAVOURITE OF ALL}, Bangkok is full of treasures to explore. Food is another highlight - from the local dishes served at the humble street stalls to the gourmet cuisines in upmarket restaurants. The first and the most famous place to visit in Bangkok is the Grand Palace. It is the royal palace where the king and the queen stay. It is a beautiful building to take pictures. The next thing is the floating market. Believe me, you have never seen something like this before if you have not been to Bangkok. It offers an authentic experience, despite its tourist atmosphere. Imagine dozens of wooden row boats floating by, each laden to the brim with farm fresh fruits and vegetables or flowers to be purchased. Then we went to the Safari World, where you get to see animals in the wilderness. There is the famous tiger park where you get to see tigers and their cubs. But wait, we didn't just get to see them, we got to play with them! We shook hands with them and took the cubs in our laps, and they didn't harm us at all. We saw the bird show, where birds were cycling, painting and even dancing. Isn't it unique? We also got a chance to get a picture clicked with the Orangutans sitting on our back and playing with us. That scared the soul out of me, but it was fun), by the way. No visit to Bangkok is complete without shopping, and I didn't disappoint Bangkok on this front – shopped to my heart's content at jaw-dropping throwaway prices! One of the most famous places to shop is the Chatuchak market – it's a street market. It's sheer size and diverse collection of merchandise will bring seasoned shoppers to their knees. The malls of Bangkok add to the shopping flavour. With all of that, I have to say that Thailand is a fun filled place to visit with your family, friends or even by yourself, and I can guarantee that you will not feel like leaving that place. So, enjoy your time to the fullest when you go to Thailand and click a lot of pictures! Happy vacations📷!

Arshpari (Class 10-J)